At first, SkyScrappers looked like a lot of fun for a couch gaming session with friends, but it is more like gambling with friends, because the only thing you do is button smashing for attacks. Jumping on some of the objects is also very random, because you are able to jump on some pieces of the collapsing tower but these spots aren't highlighted in any way. The animations are very special too, they are very unsmooth you never know, which attack you are currently making.. Damn you Phileas, damn you to hell! This game is great but I might just be the worst player ever. I really don't mind losing that much against most of the characters (especially not the mysterious Jessica) but there is something about that aristocrat smugness that really gets to me. I'll keep at it though, honing my skills until I become the ultimate SkyScraper. And then Phileas. then I'll hunt you down. And I will kill you. Seriously though, get a bunch of friends with controllers over and this is great competitive fun (even if you lose).
